UM: Govt. Budgets

BY CHRONICLE STAFF

OCTOBER 23, 2009

Michigan Radio's Christina Shockley interviews Tom Ivacko of UM's Center for Local, State and Urban Policy, who discusses a survey of how local governments in Michigan are responding to current budget problems. He reports that 47% of counties and 41% of cities expect to make service cuts, and many plan to increase fees. Ivacko also discusses the strategy of "place making," an economic development approach that focuses on developing places that people want to live and work, rather than focusing on support of individual businesses or industries. Organized by UMMA, this exhibition is made possible in part by the Florence Gould Foundation, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the University of Michigan Health System and Office of the Provost. The project would not have been possible without the generosity and cooperation of the Bibliothèque nationale de France (BnF) and features exceptional loans from the BnF and the Musée d'Orsay.
